The Tyranny of 1860's Ladies' Clothing: Marylou Wells

What does the well-dressed mid-nineteenth century lady wear, from the time she awakes in the morning until she lays her head on the pillow at night? Ladies (and gentlemen, if curious), come travel back in time 155 years to learn about the true tyranny of fashion. Marylou is an award-winning seamstress, specializing in studying and recreating women's fashions of the 1850's and 60's for the past 20 years.

Tea and scones will be served.
